Sofie Krunegård

Costume Designer / Stylist

Biography

Costume Designer Sofie Krunegård is a shooting star within costume design for feature film. She has a background within fashion styling and was at an early age endorsed by Vogue's head office in London as an assistant. She quickly advanced and became a stylist with her own international client base and ended up spending 10 years abroad splitting her time between London, Paris and New York. Over the years Sofie has worked for publications such as WSJ Magazine, Lula Magazine, Contributor Magazine and Le Officielle. She has collaborated with photographers as Ben Toms, Sharif Hamsa and Nick Dorey among others. Building characters is a strong motivation for Sofie in all her work. She is visionary and known for her ability to take the whole project's universe into account when creating the costume design. Her perfectionism and detailed touches leaves nothing to be left by chance. The film industry has welcomed Sofie with open arms, and you may already have seen her work in the award winning The Square by Ruben Östlund, or the art-house film Goliath directed by Peter Grönlund. When working with Sofie you can be sure to have a dedicated team member with an unflinching sense of style and cutting edge creative mind.
